

CASE STUDY • FALKIRK FOODBANK

Falkirk Foodbank has its origins in CVS Falkirk's Community Care and Health Forum (CCHF).

The foodbank began as a group of churches looking to alleviate food poverty in the Falkirk area. Through CCHF, they found help with storing and transporting food donations.

Effie Confrey has worked closely with CVS Falkirk since she started with Falkirk Foodbank. "They've all gone the full mile and more to help."

Effie has worked with different members of the CVS Falkirk team, receiving support with funding applications.

"They were great – they knew all the relevant key words that would help our application stand out, which was a huge help."

"We wish we could have this kind of support from everyone"

The foodbank also found its volunteer accountant through CVS Falkirk, who computerised their bookkeeping, which was "no small feat."

The foodbank is reliant on donations; as such, Effie especially appreciates all of CVS Falkirk's support. "It isn't just a job to them, they want to help."

"Everyone's been absolutely amazing"
