

CASE STUDY • ROYAL VOLUNTARY SERVICE

Lorna Stevenson had never heard of CVS Falkirk before she became manager of the RVS café in 2013.

“They contacted me to ask whether we’d ever thought of having younger people as volunteers.”

“Every volunteer who comes to me through CVS genuinely wants to be here.”

Eager to introduce some new faces to her team, Lorna was thrilled that CVS had reached out.

Since then, she’s worked closely with the CVS team to provide young volunteers with the opportunity to develop their skills and experiences in a busy, friendly environment.

“Every volunteer who comes to me through CVS genuinely wants to be here.”

“It’s important to give young people a bit of responsibility,” she says. “Even just going around with our trolley shop service, it’s amazing how they mature!”

“I don’t know what I’d have done without CVS.”

Lorna’s loved working with CVS Falkirk’s volunteering team. “I’ve often found it more beneficial to find volunteers through CVS than our own website.”
